“ Welcoming ” Thomas Cook

The Airports Authority of Trinidad and Tobago (“the Authority”) welcomes Thomas Cook Airlines as the newest addition to the island. The airbus’ inaugural flight which runs en route Manchester, London to Tobago arrived at the ANR Robinson International Airport (ANRRIA) on Sunday 13th November, 2016 (this route is also shared with Barbados).

The Airline’s website praises the experience that can be had in Tobago, lauding the destination as an outlet for relaxation and scenery. Such niceties are likewise extended to Trinidad which it describes as vivacious. Marketing the twin island destination that would help visitors forget the cold winter, the Thomas Cook Airlines estimates that its biweekly rotations for this route would see to it a significant influx of tourists between destinations. Especially enthusiastic of the prospects of this flight are stakeholders of the tourism industry, which for obvious reasons would benefit to a large extent.

Thomas Cook Airlines impressively went all out to promote this inaugural route as it treated passengers to a cultural exposé of a steel band and carnival dancers at check- in as well as music food and cocktails at departure gates. Continuing along the lines of festivity, officials from the Tobago House of Assembly warmly welcomed the pilot- Captain Simon Spence and his crew to the island; and officials of the THA presented cultural tokens to the Captain and Airline officials. Upon their arrival at ANRRIA, some 127 passengers were once again able to engage with local culture at the concourse of the ANRRIA as they were welcomed by music of the steel pan and drums and they were able to sample fruit cocktails.

The Airports Authority of Trinidad and Tobago is pleased to welcome Thomas Cook Airlines to its aviation scene and is optimistic of the many opportunities that would be had by all relevant stakeholders and supporters.
